AT 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon there was no news of ten fishermen adrift on a cake of ice in Lake Erie.

Young Mr. Butler, who succeeds his father as publisher in Buffalo, sent an airplane looking for the missing men, in charge of William Lee, assistant city editor, and two pilots. Already afloat more than twenty-four hours, [illegible]

Every year animals, except all domesticated deaths, suffer little, according to Darwin. In the excitement of flight and pursuit they feel nothing until death strikes.

Miss Schwinghammer, well named, drove ten nails into a surface in forty-four seconds. That would seem slow to professionals nailing shingles or laths for a living.

But it is important because it makes something really useful part of athletic training. Our imported kinds of athletics are mere survivals of other days, like the vermiform appendix. All useful once.

Somebody said it is impossible to imagine how a man feels, hanging from the edge of a precipice, no help in sight. But that's a mistake. It is a mistake to sell short.

Tell that to your wealthy child, for this prosperity MIGHT last until he grows up.

HOW PUPILS ESCAPED FROM FIRE FIEND PERIL IN SOUTH BOSTON PAROCHIAL SCHOOL

While all Boston police were on tiptoe today in search for the firebugs who set five churches ablaze in South Boston, flames swept the top stories and roof of the Parochial School of SS. Peter and Paul Church, from which 850 pupils were led to safety by Sister Superior Mary Florence, aided by firemen and police officers, as shown in this photo, which depicts the escape of the children by way of the school yard. The sister superior is shown at top of steps keeping the pupils in line as they file out of burning building.

Maniac Applies Torch 6th Time

The torch of the pyromaniacs responsible for fires in five South Boston churches ignited a parochial school in the same district today, endangering the lives of 850 children.

The fiends, believed by the police to number two, fired SS. Peter and Paul Roman Catholic School, West Broadway.

Firemen responding to two alarms confined the blaze to a fourth floor storeroom where the work of the incendiaries originated.

Prompt work by the Sisters of Notre Dame, who conduct the school, resulted in the burning building being cleared of its young occupants in less than two minutes.

Property damage was several thousands of dollars.

The sixth attempt to destroy South Boston religious edifices was made even as the Boston Evening American offered a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of those responsible, and while the heaviest police guard since the Sacco-Vanzetti executions was set for apprehension of the "firebugs."

The incendiaries, one of whom was [illegible] gone last night, added a police guard set for their capture at SS. Peter and Paul Church by avoiding the church and shifting into the [illegible] school.

The latest fire was viewed by police as evidence that the criminals [illegible] to put out [illegible] but in their [illegible] to destroy [illegible] by fire.

NARROW GAUGE ENGINE RUNS WILD IN STATION

Plowing through a bumper in the Lynn station of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn Railroad today, engine No. 7 drawing a five-car train from Boston, tore through a fence, scattering a crowd of commuters, and toppled over on its side with a hiss of escaping steam.

Engineer Howard Tewksbury of Winthrop and Fireman Alfred Devean of Lynn leaped to safety while passengers on the train were shaken up. One man whose name could not be learned cut an arm when he thrust it through the glass of a window.

The cab of the engine caught fire, and for a time it was feared that the station might be ignited, but the fire-fighting apparatus arrived shortly and extinguished the blaze.

The train, due at Lynn at 9:05 from Boston, carried few passengers, the bulk of the traffic being in the other direction at that time in the

White Girl and Negro Wed at Midnight

Rockville, Ct., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Spurred on by threats and protests against their union, Beatrice Fuller, 19, a white girl, and Clarence Kellem, a negro, were married here at 1 o'clock this morning by a justice of the peace.

Carl A. Goehring of Killingly was the justice who performed the ceremony after the couple had tried in vain to be married last night by Rev. George S. Brooks, pastor of the Union Congregational Church.

The Congregational minister had agreed to marry them today, but he would not set the time of the ceremony.

The Kellems were said to have left for Philadelphia on their honeymoon shortly after their wedding.

Mrs. Kellem claims direct descent from Nathaniel Lyon, Union general in the Civil War, and traces her lineage down to colonists who landed from the Mayflower. Kellem, an employe of a dye manufacturing plant, lives with his stepmother, who is a Caucasian. His own mother, dead, was also white.

The Sisters of Notre Dame marshalled the 850 children so efficiently when fire broke out in SS. Peter and Paul Parochial School that they were all out of the building without harm to any one as flames shot through the eaves of the building.

Two alarms were sounded when fire broke out in a storeroom on the upper floor of the school building and quickly spread along the eaves. The flames were quickly subdued.

basements fashion are clever, and will not fail at the talents of human life to satisfy their inborn desires.

The school fired today is one of a group of three buildings conducted by the parish of SS. Peter and Paul Church. These include on the West Broadway side, between Dorchester avenue and A street, a structure housing the high school and a convent, as well as the school in which the blaze occurred.

BOY GIVES CLEW

Fire was discovered in the fourth floor storeroom shortly after the children had returned to the building from their morning recess.

John Ryan, an eighth grade pupil going to the cloakroom, which is on the fourth floor opposite the storeroom, met a young man, about 20 years old, running down the back stairs.

The youth wore a brown coat, soft hat and blue trousers, Ryan told Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley, who with Fire Commissioner Hultman and inspectors from the State Fire marshals' office, was early on the scene.

The point attached no particular significance to the incident until, as he was hanging up his coat, he smelled smoke.

With Ryan was another pupil in the same grade, Joseph Chamberlain. Both ran downstairs where they told Sister Antoine of the Sacred Heart. She immediately notified Sister Superior Mary Florence and while Chamberly sounded the fire alarm the Sister Superior rang the bell for fire drill.

PUPILS MARCH OUT

Within 120 seconds, the sisters aided by Patrolmen John Sullivan and Warren Bolberg, marshalled their charges and marched them from the building in perfect order, without any semblance of fear.

District Chief Michael Nelson ordered a second alarm sounding as a precaution. Meanwhile, local firemen extinguished the flames shortly after they had burst through the fourth floor windows and were spreading to the roof and cloakroom.

With Fire Chief Sennott and Superintendent Crowley co-operating, an immediate investigation was launched, with the result that the police department in the end accused complete charges.

The fire is believed to have been set in the storeroom in a large box containing promotional material. From the box it spread to a desk of the Irish Jasper stored in the same room.

HORSE-RACING TIP

Police found a number of newspapers scattered about the storeroom. One in particular was regarded as a valuable clew, a copy of a last April issue of a New York paper that devotes much space to horse-racing news.

Under no circumstances, investigators point out, would the school authorities have allowed the journal on the premises.

Matthew Donovan, janitor of the school, told the police that the storeroom is used only on rare occasions and the seldom visits it. There had been no occasion to use it today, he said.

The Rev. James A. O'Rourke took Superintendent Crowley through the building on a search for other possible clues.

The building fired by the incendiaries is a four-story brick structure, housing the class rooms for children between the ages of 5½ and 17 years. Other children study in the high school in the rear.

POLICE QUIZ BOY

Their fears aroused by the activities of the pyromaniacs throughout the district, about a score of mothers of pupils in the school gathered at the Convent of Notre Dame, next to the fire and in peaceful confidence, while the fire was in progress. Cool-headed sisters allayed the anxiety of all.

So valuable did police consider the story told by young Ryan that he was taken by Sergeant Jeremiah O'Neil to station 6 for further questioning in the belief that he may recall further characteristics of the youth who fled the building as the fire broke out.

The description given by Ryan tallies to some extent with one given the police today by Mary A. Ferry of No. 259 Emerson street, an employe of a bakery at Emerson and L streets, South Boston.

Miss Ferry told a dramatic story, fully substantiated, of overhearing two youths plotting to set fire to the Gate of Heaven Church which last night was fired by incendiaries, the fourth church set ablaze in two days and the fifth within a recent period.

The bakery where Miss Ferry works is about 100 feet from the South Boston Church where the disastrous incendiary fire occurred Sunday.

HEARD TWO PLOTTERS

Last night, the girl told authorities, two youths stood for a minute outside the store window and she heard one say to the other:

"Tomorrow we torch the Gate of Heaven Church."

They walked away then, but not before she noted that one wore a cap and the other was bareheaded.

The previous alarming attempts to destroy South Boston churches caused her to believe that the statement she had overheard was something more than an idle jest, so she called a small boy and sent him to fetch a woman who lived next door in a house provided with a telephone. There is no telephone in the bakery.

The boy returned to inform her that the woman was not home and that the woman's husband, a fireman, was at the fire.

Miss Ferry, for a time, was without means of warning the church pastor.

FIRE AFTER WARNING

A short time later Mrs. Eugene Sullivan of No. 660 East Fifth street entered the store to make some purchases and the girl told of her suspicions.

Mrs. Sullivan, impressed by Miss Ferry's sincerity sent her 16-year-old daughter, Leonora, to warn the Rev. George Lyons, the pastor. Father Lyons being ill, the girl sought Father McNamara and while she stood on the steps of the parish house, voicing her warning to the priest, the shout was heard that the church was afire.

Police believe that Miss Ferry actually overheard the two pyromaniacs who are responsible for the attempts to destroy the school today, the South Baptist Church, St. Philbin's Roman Catholic Church, the Gate of Heaven Church, the Phillips Congregational Church and St. Augustine's House of Worship.

the trial of Nesoid El-Jah, fortune-telling mystic, and Frederick Dutton, former chauffeur for Enwright.

El-Jah and Dutton, charged with attempted extortion and with threatening Enwright and his daughter, Eleanor, are on trial before Judge Ralph W. Reeve.

HE DINED FIRST.

Enwright, who was accompanied to court by his wife, took an hour and fifteen minutes in telling his story under the guidance of his attorney, Walter Payne, who acted as prosecuting officer of the court.

He told of being "kidnaped" in his car by Dutton, who picked up El-Jah and then drove to a shack in Nahant, where money was demanded, the same story he told the police previously.

There was only one change in his recital. He said that after the two men took him to Boston and left him, on his promise to mail El-Jah some money, he went to dinner with two business associates before going to Lynn and telling his story to the police.

AIDED IN CURLEY SUIT.

Attorney John Foley, counsel for El-Jah, beginning his cross-examination, asked the witness why he did not go to the Boston police.

"I was afraid of the Boston police, afraid they would not give me a square deal," he replied. When Foley asked his reason for this fear Judge Reeve ruled the question out.

Enwright was asked by Attorney Foley what the special services were which El-Jah had rendered him and for which El-Jah had been paid in full, according to Enwright.

"It was during the Curley-Enwright trial," replied the publisher, referring to the trial that cost him a term in jail. "He succeeded in obtaining from Mr. Gordon of Hanover, Mo., a very important document which was of a lot of value to me in my case while it was pending before the Supreme Court."

El-Jah formerly conducted a column in one of Enwright's newspapers. The publisher said he had receipts showing the mystic had been paid for all services.

called for and the permit number of the store, the pharmacist retains one copy for his record and forwards the other copy to the prohibition office at the end of the month."

The trailing of rum-runners through fog 200 miles at sea, the widespread dragnets set around border cities for liquor smugglers, the wiping out of as high as $70,000 investments in a single raid—these and many more pictures of Federal activity on behalf of the Eighteenth Amendment were unfolded by Doran as an explanation of how appropriations were expended in the past fiscal year.

Problems besetting administrators of the dry law, such as that recently presented by the wholesale flunking of Civil Service tests by enforcement agents, also were detailed.

OLD "RUM ROW" GONE.

Doran charged that co-operation with the Federal authorities was lacking in five States, New York, Maryland, Montana, Nevada and New Mexico, because "there is no State code under which the State officers may work."

The greatest single problem facing enforcement officers now, he said, is that of illicit distilling.

"Coast Guard and Customs officials have checked off large smuggling operations such as old 'Rum Row,'" he said, adding that satisfactory control of industrial alcohol has accentuated the illicit distilling problem.

morning. As it entered the station, the engineer applied the brakes, which locked and failed to hold.

The engine, with the momentum furnished by its own weight and that of the five cars behind it, slid along for about 100 feet, tossing aside the heavy, reinforced bumper as though it were built of studding.

Between the bumper and station is a fence erected to keep the commuters from the tracks until trains are ready to be boarded. The enclosure behind this fence contained about 50 persons, most of them girls and women bound for Boston.

Alarmed by the crash and rending of stout timbers, they stood spellbound as the engine slid along and nosed through the fence into their midst. There was a wild scramble for safety, the screams of women mingling with the roar of steaming steam as the locomotive turned over on its side and ended its journey with its snout but a short distance from the station walls.

In the meantime Engineer Tewksbury and Fireman Deveau, realizing that it was impossible to stop the engine, had leaped from opposite sides of the cab before it struck the station and landed safely except for a shaking up.

As the locomotive slid over onto its side red hot coals from the fire box were shot out into the cab and within a few minutes a fire was blazing. Lynn fire apparatus responded in a quick run and extinguished the blaze before it could spread to the station.

A squad of officers in charge of Sergeant Dunleavey was hurried to Worcester street, arriving as a girl and two men came out. The two were taken to the station and later arraigned in court.

The two men were charged with robbery, and the girl with assault and battery on Henry Rhodier, landlord of the Worcester street house where it developed that trouble had occurred following the holdup. Smith or McDonald was also charged with evading a fare, and with the young woman was charged with a statutory offence.

LIFE OF ONE IS PRESERVED BY OPERATION

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.)—The separation by surgery of Siamese twins a week old to save the life of one of them after the other had died has been reported from the Ryburn Memorial Hospital at Ottawa, Ill.

The twins were born near Marseilles, Ill., Feb. 1 to Mrs. Frank Keller. They were joined in the lower part of the abdomen in such a manner that the same blood coursed through both bodies. Each weighed about five and one-half pounds.

Dr. Paul E. Clark said one of the twins, named Meta Marie, died shortly after birth. The other, also a girl, showed no signs of life, save circulation of blood, pumped through the heart of Meta Marie.

Efforts to start life in the body of the other infant failed. Using a makeshift incubator, built by the physician and the father of the twins, Frank Keller, they were taken to the Ryburn Hospital. An anaesthetic was used, after which the operation separating Meta Marie from her lifeless sister was performed. Oxygen was used for an hour to counteract the effect of the anaesthetic.

Within two days Meta Marie was returned to her mother, normal and sturdy, the physician said.

WIFE SUES BROKER MULLEN, 'PHANTOM OF TELEPHONE'

REVEALS THEY HAVE BEEN SEPARATED

Trouble has descended with a heavy hand upon John F. Mullen, "bar broker" and "phantom voice of the telephone." It was revealed today when a bill in equity in Superior Court brought to light that Mullen's wife has left him.

Mullen, who had a brokerage office in Milk street, one of several he is alleged by police to have operated the last few years, was arrested last Friday charged specifically with the larceny of $14,700.

In reality, according to the police, the broker, whose magnificent home is in Tarleton road, Newton Centre, has stolen well over $200,000 from clients and through "bucket shop" dealings, the clients including school teachers.

Search of Superior Court records, following disclosures of his wife's bill, revealed today that a number of other suits have been filed against Mullen.

One is to recover for $2,701.31 worth of jewelry alleged to have been purchased from C. W. Alstadt-lund Co. in Washington street.

Another is a suit of Alice M. Carpenter, boarding house keeper of Keene, N. H., against Mullen and George A. Eastman, co-partner under the firm name of M. S. Chamberlin & Co. She charges she swindled her out of stock and seeks to recover $3,000.

In a third suit Fred W. Gifford of Boston asserts the "bar broker" owes him $700 and interest on account of a fraudulent stock transaction.

Then there is a suit brought against Mullen by Francis R. Whelton, attorney, who alleges a debt of $350 for professional services, and another for $1,000 brought by James T. Welch on account of commissions on stock sales made during November, 1924.

The bill in equity of the broker's wife, Mrs. Delphina A. Mullen, reveals she is living apart from him "for justifiable cause" by a decree of Middlesex Probate Court dated February 12, 1925.

6 SAVAGE RATS ATTACK 2 GIRLS IN SO. BOSTON

While two young girls lay asleep in their South Boston home today, they were viciously attacked by half a dozen large, sized rats. The girls, becoming hysterical, were unable to protect themselves.

Seizing a broom the mother, Mrs. Martha Barkon of No. 7 Howe avenue, rushed into the room and waged a twenty-minute battle with the rodents, which transferred their attacks to the woman.

They jumped at her from all sides. She killed several with blows from her makeshift weapon and drove the others away.

The girls, Thelma, 6, sis, and Edith, eight, were taken to City Hospital in a commandeered machine. There the former was found to be suffering from deep bites on the second and middle fingers and Edith had two severe lacerations about the left eye.

Their wounds were cauterized by Dr. Coleman and they were sent home. According to police the section has been infested by large rats for many weeks. They never before attacked human beings.

The case was reported to health authorities.

HUB POSTOFFICE PROVIDED IN NEW BILL

Boston's proposed postoffice and federal building, a step toward relief through provisions of a bill which awaited the signature of President Coolidge.

This measure authorizes expenditures of $100,000,000, in addition to a sum already appropriated for the same construction outside the District of Columbia, and will save many millions of dollars annually in the operating cost in ten-year-building program.

Besides the terms of the bill, Massachusetts will be affected $15,215,000 by the authorization for allowing expenditure of $100,000,000 annually, this sum being allotted on a per capita basis among cities that are to have new buildings.

By doubling the funds available in the present authorization, presidential approval, the postoffice and treasury can go ahead at once with the new construction which is all the country is now awaiting.

W. H. VANDERSUILT BUYS RHODE ISLAND BUS LINE

Vanderbilt of this city, head of the Automotive Transportation Company, operating a number of motor bus lines in southern New England, has purchased the Colonial Coach Line, it was announced here, Vanderbilt, one of the late Alfred G. The Colonial Coach Line has been operated by the Newport Electric Corporation a subsidiary of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation of Chicago.

BANISH BOBS, GIRLS; SHOW EAR TIPS

Philadelphia, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Women must let her tresses grow; the shaggy bob, arch-enemy, seductive and flapper's delight haircuts are definitely out, and instead comes the dictum of long, hair. Ears must be covered, except for discreet tips exposed. Permanent waving is quite the thing.

All this was gleaned at the opening session of the Philadelphia Hairdressers' Association, in annual convention here.

"Jewelry had something to do with the back-to-longer-hair movement," said Anthony Boch, president of the association. "Women will wear period jewelry, so, of course, they must wear their hair to form a fitting frame.

"Long earrings bespeak long cropped hair. Evening strokes in the robe-de-style type presuppose the possession of hair long enough to cover the ears. And if women want 1928 editions of the 1847 crinolines and forbidden, they will find that the marcel effect makes a happy combination."

How eyebrows should be disdained was also discussed. The faint, elusive line that served as an arch-on that year must take on a more pallid aspect. Heavier or thicker must be that line. After that comes the artistic tapering, effected by means of tweezer or pencil.

WALES VISITS FLOOD AREA AS LANDLORD

London, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The Daily Mail says the Prince of Wales, as a landlord, visited the districts of South London stricken by the recent flood.

He spent two hours walking about the streets inspecting the damage and visiting and sympathizing with sufferers. Householders, answering a knock on their doors were surprised to find their royal landlord waiting on the doorstep.

Guessing Contest on Church Page Closes Friday

The guessing contest begun in the Church page of last Saturday asking readers of the Boston Evening American to identify laymen representatives of different denominations will close at noon Friday.

NEAR DEATH IN STAGE HANGING

London, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Too much realism caused two accidents on European stages that in one case almost ended fatally.

Walter Sondes, an English actor, nearly lost his life in a realistic hanging scene in "Ta Gobe" at the Garrick Theatre in London when the hanging paraphernalia went wrong. By the time Sondes could be taken from the gallows, he was unconscious and needed lengthy administrations from a doctor.

The second accident was in Belgrade, Jugoslavia, where Madame Zlata Gavela, prima donna of the National Theatre, was rushed to the stage floor through her foot by a dagger awkwardly thrown by a servant in one of the scenes of an opera. Mastering the pain, Madame Gavela completed her song and when the curtain was lowered and her foot freed, fainted from loss of blood.

REED'S CANDIDACY TO BE ANNOUNCED FEB. 28

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Formal announcement of the candidacy of Senator James A. Reed of Missouri for the Democratic presidential nomination will be made at the Missouri State Democratic convention in St. Joseph February 28, Frederick A. Gardner, former Governor of Missouri, said today.

QUEEN ABSENT AS KING OPENS PARLIAMENT

London, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—England's finest specimen of royal and ancient pageantry, the opening of Parliament, was enacted at noon today. It lacked some of its usual brilliance, however, because for the first time in his reign King George was not accompanied by Queen Mary.

The Queen was ill with a cold at Buckingham Palace and the King rode alone in state in the coach of gold.

At Westminster he read his speech from the throne, in which he said the British government was sympathetically studying the new draft of the treaty of arbitration with the United States to replace the treaty of 1908.

FOR WORLD PEACE.

"My relations with the foreign powers continue to be friendly," he said. "It is the constant effort of my government to cooperation with the League of Nations to secure the settlement of international differences and promote the cause of peace.

The King said it would be a pleasure to receive the King of Afghanistan, whom he has invited for a visit in March.

The improvement of the position in China, he continued, enabled a reduction in the naval and military forces in the Far East, but the situation through internal disturbances still caused anxiety.

"In spite of these discouraging circumstances," the King declared, "my government will adhere to the declaration of policy published by them a year ago as a basis upon which they are prepared to meet Chinese aspirations, when the Chinese can assure satisfactory protection for British lives and property."

SEES BETTER TRADE.

Regarding local affairs the speech pointed out that the condition of some of the principal industries caused serious anxiety but that there were encouraging signs of progress. An improvement in home and external trade, inquiries, the king stated, were being made into the burden of local taxes on industry and agriculture with a view of alleviating them.

Proposals would be submitted, the king said, for amending the law relating to parliamentary and local government franchise.

The speech concluded with the announcement that bills dealing with other measures of importance would be introduced and brought up as opportunity allowed.

On recommendation of Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton, the Board of Aldermen of that city passed an order to petition the Legislature for permission to pay compensation to the widow of Leonard Jackson, Health Department inspector, killed in the explosion in West Newton a week ago yesterday. DIVERS DARING COLD WATER TO GET $4

Provincetown, Feb. 7.—In the lowest temperatures in which diving has ever been done, according to officers directing the salvaging of the sunken submarine S4, six Navy divers worked for hours inside and outside the gashed hull 130 feet below the sea's surface.

With the new equipment that prevents cold air turning to frost in the air lines, the low temperatures cause intense discomfort, but constitute little danger. Only wind can bother and today the weather was moderate with light land breezes.

After meeting with trouble in blowing air into the ballast tanks, the salvagers called for a new examination of the cut in the submarine and divers found that it was worse than previously reported and might interfere seriously with efforts to fill the hull with salvage air for lifting purposes.

Monday, due to differences in internal construction of the S4 and some of her sister ships, in which the divers practiced on the surface for their undersea tasks, they met with difficulties in finding and opening the proper valves in the control room.

Diver "Whitey" Michels, who nearly lost his life here in December, and suffered for a long time afterwards with the "bends," was one of those who went below.

Others were Wilson, Wickwire, Mattox, McNulty and Baker.

HUNT FOR TO FISHERMEN ON ICE FLOE GIVEN UP

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 7 (I.N.S.)—Search for ten fishermen reported lost on an ice floe in Lake Erie was definitely abandoned today when thorough investigation failed to show that there had actually been any men on the floe, or that if there had been any, they had been carried out into the lake.

A check-up along the shore from Port Colborne to Port Erie showed no men reported missing.

LINDY GETS KEY TO CITY; HAS COOL SWIM

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti, Feb. 7 (A. P.)—The key to the city of Port-Au-Prince was added to Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's large collection today. It was presented to him when he made an official call on the Communal Commission, after he had paid his respects to President Borno at the palace.

The flying man was around bright and early this morning, and refreshed himself with a swim in the mountain water of the pool that adjoins the green and white two-story bungalow placed at his disposal by Commissioner Russell. This is the guest house located at the rear of the commissioner's residence, and will probably hereafter be known as "Villa Lindbergh."

Colonel Lindbergh's official day began at 9:30, when the nation's guest, escorted by General Russell and aides, with Lieutenant Phillips Chamu, a slim, keen young soldier, designated by the President as Lindbergh's personal aid, paid a visit to the palace. There the assembled native troops—the palace guard—were drawn up in his honor.

A review of troops and a reception at the palace were on the program for the afternoon, and in the evening the Russell residence will be given over for a reception to the American colony and numerous distinguished Haitians, so that they may become more intimately acquainted with the youthful visitor.

AFFIDAVITS HINT FOUL PLAY IN SMITH CASE

spoken of ... Dow, Vicar of St. Penthod, who does work in that city for the organization known as Clerks, she said, are principally the overworked or cultural activities of the city.

Mrs. Ford also said of a blackened reputation of her home in Chestnut Court, Cambridge, that as far as she knew Griffith's character was unblemished.

One of the most heads at the hearing was Griffith, the object was summoned and ordered his counsel, Moses Mr. Edmund Dinneen, to produce.

At noontime the court room was crowded with persons desiring admission, but only a few were admitted. Among those who were not permitted to enter was Mrs. Edmund Dinneen, wife of the defendant's attorney, and her daughter Mary, who had been present during the morning session.

The session opened with the girl's case and adjourned to the noontime recess. Then the affidavits were read, the first of which was that of Mrs. Ford, the wife of Professor Ford, of Cambridge, who testified that she had been employed by the Smiths as a maid for a year and a half, and that she had never seen Griffith in the house.

Another affidavit was that of Mrs. Frances Fahey, a domestic, who testified that she had been employed by the Smiths for a year and a half, and that she had never seen Griffith in the house.

The affidavits were then read to the Massachusetts Youth Interest League, it was learned, in relation to the fact that Miss Smith, while at Smith College, interfered with the normal court case, and that she had been led to the possible capture of the girl's abductor. It is now believed by certain persons that the girl who was abducted by the man described in the affidavits.

Upon hearing the account of the girl whose bedroom was invaded by the midnight intruder, Dinneen, mother, or matron of the dormitory in question, endeavored to affirm why she could not get forth the details of the frightened student with the exception of the statement that the incident was "nothing more than a nightmare."

CAUTIONED TO SILENCE.

By this time, however, the girl who crossed on the upper floor had contributed her part to the story and had actually been the matcher, and had mainly finger prints upon the key involved.

The girls were examined the affidavits are said to declare, to tell no one of the occurrence and to discuss it in no manner with any other than college authorities.

The present theory is that the man who entered the dormitory named in the affidavits succeeded in gaining access to the room of some of the girls at Smith College.

That he was familiar with the and other occasions not stated in the affidavits and that he became aware of the fact that Frances M. John Smith roomed alone in Dewey Hall, that there was a fire escape leading from her room to the ground and that on the third or fourth visit to the college he gained entrance with an unreliable key which he dropped in the shrubbery, and carried her room but somebody was conscious.

The theory is based on the fact that the intruder, after discovering that the scent of sweet peas was said to have been plainly noticeable in the girl's room and the corridor for days after her disappearance, but only after her disappearance, and that the college authorities decided this is a psychological approach, declaring that the scent was that of chemicals used to disinfect, and not in any way related to anesthetics.

DUPLICATES AFFIDAVITS.

In connection with the execution of the affidavits regarding the midnight visit of the intruder to the girls' dormitory, it has learned that on January 25, Miss Marion King, daughter of the president of Smith College, had an interview with a reporter, a story that practically duplicated that of the affidavits, the publication of which are protested by the prosecution as a veil of secrecy.

According to Miss King's account of Tuesday, during the week of January 16, a man entered the room in which she was reading in her room at night, and that he made no attempt to escape by a window or door, but instead, by the latter one, and that she shortly thereafter, while standing in the corridor, while standing in conversation with a friend, was told to be forwarded to the dormitory at a college near Springfield.

On the same day it was said another girl at the college reported that a man had entered her room, that she had turned her head, and that he had disappeared. The report was vigorously denied by the college authorities.

It is now believed that the "second girl" was revealed the story at the midnight visit to the college, which would have meant the man's visit near the date of Frances Smith's disappearance, and that he be the girl named in the affidavits now on file with the Boston organization.

The fact that an unnamed girl on January 21 placed the call for the man to her room "about a week ago" would bring the date to about the time of the disappearance of Frances Smith. It is therefore the theory of certain officials that the girl who gave the information and the one named in the affidavits may be one and the same, and that the midnight visitor described in these documents may have been responsible for the abduction and possible murder of the missing Smith student.

NEGRO MARRIES PILGRIM GIRL AT MIDNIGHT

said that while she did not fully approve of the wedding, she felt that it was "for the best interests" of the two that they get married.

Negro Boy's Songs Won Heart of White Bride

Nashville, Ill., Feb. 7.—Although a man born on the wings of a Southern breeze melodic enough to charm the barrier of race and color for a 19-year-old white girl and a negro boy today, a discordant element threatened their symphony happiness.

Within this town of some 3,000 souls mixed divided on the marriage today of Clarence Kellum and Beatrice Fahey, piano decention was heard in the hands of the prospective groom.

The organization who rises to this town, is scathe. He three brothers and a mother. They are said to have lived a quiet, uneventful life, and their happiness has never been ruffled by a thought of their race.

However, since word has spread far and wide of the secret marriage of their brother, they have become the target of considerable criticism. Perhaps the most prominent is that of Mrs. Ida Kellum, mother of the bridegroom. She says that she would rather see him dead than to see him marry a negro, and the brothers declare they have never been made to feel that they were not mother other humans.

PASTOR BALKS AT JOB.

This, with word that the Rev. George R. Brough, pastor of the First Congressional Church, had withdrawn his promise to perform the marriage service, started ripples, however, on the surface of the pool of public opinion.

The pastor made his decision after a flood of phone calls had overwhelmed him, and after consulting with the deacons of his church. Then one of them turned Editor and rang the bell. Then, too, the Ku Klux Klan turned a few cross on a hill near by as a warning.

But Scarboro was happy today with the spell of the old plantation songs cast on her and with the blessing of her dusky husband still in her ears. The Kellum had attended their last night, on the eve of their marriage.

And as he drew the one minute speech of his life, the words of the songs from the old plantation days floated from the piano. He declared he simply sang to the Mayflower, frankly said.

"I was such uncanny music of his voice and harmonica that I just got me. These negro songs are wonderful. They are wonderful. And when he isn't singing or playing on the mouth organ he is reading to me from the Bible."

LAST CENT FOR A RING.

She was not reticent to discuss their future married life.

"Yes, I want children and I want to call my first son Clarence," she declared.

Kellum, who earns but $15 a week in a wood dye factory, spent his last penny on a wedding ring. She would buy her engagement for a wedding dress, a simple affair of white. Friends will furnish the rest. They will take to honeymoon.

When he was in the navy Kellum became a common figure aboard the U. S. S. Scorpion.

DELEGATES'LL USE THEIR HIPS

Washington, Feb. 7 (U.N.S.)—Delegates to the Republican and Democratic national conventions who fail to take their beverages to Kansas City and Houston may find the political atmosphere somewhat cooler than in party headquarters in the absence of intoxicating liquors.

Prohibition has been said to be responsible for a decrease in conventions from his headquarters, according to the Democratic and Republican conventions of 1920 and 1924, the first two will not be very dry, officials said.

Special investigators of the prohibition office will be stationed in Houston and Kansas City in an effort to prevent the bootleggers from operating on.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman said today: "Prohibition is the law and must be enforced and I am sure that the delegates will be glad to assist in directly responsible for the enforcement of the law. I do not expect any difficulties from a delegate and it matter of liquor conference. Any officials who offends would be severely dealt with."

Officials said in an "under cover" basis, conducted only in the discretion of large liquor and smuggling conspiracies.

The Prohibition Bureau will pay no attention to importation of liquor for personal use, and will not search for it. There is no probability that cases of private owners will be questioned by Federal agents, although what steps will be taken by the Federal and State authorities is not known.

The selection by the board of directors of Frank C. Nichols and Bowen Tufts to fill vacancies on the executive committee of the Boston Chamber of Commerce was announced today by Melville D. Lowe, secretary. Mr. Nichols, vice-president of the National Shawmut Bank, and Mr. Tufts, vice-president of C. D. Parker Company, will continue to serve on the board of directors, of which they have been active members.

"Sorry Can't Stop!" Lindy Drops Note at Santiago

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—While Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh was unable to stop yesterday at the inland city of Santiago de los Caballeros, where 1,000 of his admirers had gathered to see him en route from Santo Domingo to Port-au-Prince, Haiti, he dropped a message to the eager crowd.

"Deeply sorry my visit in Santo Domingo being so short prevented my stopping at San Diego," the message read. "Highly appreciate hearty welcome received; would like to stay longer, there being so much of interest.—Lindbergh."

BRITONS TO ACT ON PRAYER BOOK

London, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The house of lords today passed the bill of Lord Banbury to vote ecclesiastic today on the prayer book question now agitating the Anglican Church.

Both the house of clergy and the house of laymen approved the bill, which, however, contained an amendment that the proposal of regarding the prayer book revision be postponed for three years.

Athelstan Riley, vice president of the English Church Union, and a noted Anglo-Catholic layman, expressed the opinion that the recent publication of the Malines conversations had had an unfavorable effect on the attitude of the people towards the disputed prayer book. Reunion by force pending in the church is only.

"All we ask," Lord Banbury declared, "is that the church of England, but if some since independent I do not think I could stroke out for the Church of Rome."

SLATER-BROWN SUIT OPENS IN WASHINGTON

Worcester, Feb. 7.—Textile officials here are watched to-day the next court move to hear the details of the suit brought by S. States and Lucius Brown of Providence. Witness Jacob F. Brown of Boston, former president of the Slater Mills and a director in the institutions in both States.

The Slater interests are represented by Claude, Hall & Stewart and Brown Inc as counsel, Herbert, Jones & Hall.

The bill states that Brown while president of the Slater corporation, formed that of the Westcott Thread mill at Farnumsville, one of the most desirable holdings of the slaters, so-called, in order to acquire the property for himself at the termination of the trust established under the will of Horatio Slater.

Friends Press Hoover to Get Into the Race

Washington, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Definite developments in the Hoover candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination are looked for in the next few days.

Leaders in the movement apparently are confident that the former food administrator will be induced to make the race, it is believed here.

In the face of it all Hoover adherents are looking for developments, not within a week or so but expected to decide one way or another by the middle of March. In the period for filing candidacies in the various primary states the opportunity for him to step out in the open for Ohio's fifteenth convention.

Another who remains silent while his friends work for him with his knowledge and consent is Hoover himself, it is said. He would announce his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for a Washington's birthday address.

At Miami, Fla., former Governor Frederick A. Gardner of Missouri, said he would announce the Senator's candidacy on Feb. 21, in St. Joseph, at his state Democratic convention.

BEDRIDDEN MAN BURNED TO DEATH

New Bedford, Feb. 7.—In his invalid's bed, a bed of flame from an overheated stove, the clothing of Antone P. Soares was found by firemen and police when they burst into his room on the third floor at No. 207 South Water street, in answer to alarm of fire.

A helpless sufferer from rheumatism, Mr. Soares could only move when supported because of this he was unable to save his life. Scorches from a cigarette had ignited the bedclothing.

'AL' SMITH NOT SURE HE'LL GO TO HOUSTON

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 7 (A. N. S.)—Governor Al Smith revealed today that he has not made up his mind whether he will attend the Democratic National Convention at Houston, Texas, in June.

His plans are very indefinite and I will not decide until I will do, the governor said.

Asked if it was true that some of the Governor's friends have advised him not to go to Houston, while others have urged him to attend, the governor said his name is mentioned in connection for his presidential nomination.

The Governor announced he had received an invitation extended to him by the mayor of Montgomery, Ala., to visit that city while en route to or from Houston.

"I told the mayor that my plans were indefinite and for that reason I could not respond to accept his kind invitation," the Governor said.

Society at Palm Beach Out to Elect Mayor

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb 7 (A.P.).—Society matrons and debutantes whose names grace the social registers of New York and other eastern cities went to the polls today with the butcher, the baker and other tradesmen to elect a Mayor and a full ticket of municipal officers.

Society has been active during the campaign in behalf of Major Barclay H. Warburton, a former publisher and a former police commissioner of Philadelphia.

Major Warburton, who announced he was making no campaign but would "accept the job, if it is tendered me," heads the administration ticket. The independent ticket is led by Franklin P. Eastman, head of the Palm Beach Improvement League.

The chief issue has been whether the Palm Beach Water Company shall continue to make a service charge and increase its rates, with the independent candidates taking a determined stand against the ordinance.

Included among those who endorsed Warburton were A. J. Drexel Biddle, E. T. Stotesbury, Anita Loos, Flo Ziegfeld, Harold Vanderbilt and others numbering more than 350.

LOWER AIR MAIL RATES URGED; 6 LINES PAYING

Washington, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Six of the fifteen privately operated air mail lines in the country now are making a profit, W. L. Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster-General, has told a House appropriations subcommittee.

Testifying on the postoffice appropriation bill at hearings made public today, he disclosed that there now are 13,700 miles of air lines over which air mail fliers are traveling 24,736 miles each day.

Glover said there had been a healthy growth in the air mail services and that if Congress should change the air mail rate from ten cents a half ounce to five cents an ounce, as proposed in a pending bill, operators expected an increase in poundage variously estimated at from 100 to 200 per cent.

Referring to the possibility of air mail service between this country and Mexico, Glover said the Mobile-New Orleans link of the Chicago-to-New Orleans route should be lighted to care for this contingency.

PAN-AMERICAN DELEGATES TO HEAR WOMEN

Havana, Feb. 7.—Women will have their say at the Pan-American conference today when seven women from the United States and Latin-America are to be allowed ten minutes each to present to the delegates their arguments upholding the doctrine of equal rights for women throughout the world.

Although the ladies will have their say, it will be to a conference officially adjourned beforehand. The delegates, however, will politely remain in their seats. The decision to adjourn officially before the women spoke was made ten days ago.

STUDY ECONOMIC BARRIERS.

In addition, several other projects were listed for consideration today. Three included:

The recommendation by Mexico that a technical conference be called for January, 1929, to consider the matter of economic barriers to inter-American trade.

The proposal by Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher of the United States and Dr. Jesus Salazar of Peru that immediate steps be taken to stimulate interest in the construction of a Pan-American highway from the United States to Chile and Argentina.

The establishment of a Pan-American agricultural bureau to stimulate farm development by providing for the exchange of agricultural information.

REVAMP AVIATION PACT.

A revamped commercial aviation pact differing in several vital respects from the projected convention formulated by the governing board of the Pan American Union today was ready for presentation to the communications committee for approval.

The treaty was shorn of clauses which had previously been attacked by Colombia, Mexico and other nations. Questions pertinent to the interests of the United States in Panama and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, are believed to have been settled satisfactorily and it is confidently expected the first commercial aviation convention between the American nations will be concluded successfully.

The committee decided to discard any phrase limiting adherence to the treaty to members of the Pan American union leaving it open for the signature of all States.

Spank Vicious Ideas Out of American Youth, Says Baumes

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Spanking to eradicate from the minds of youths the "vicious," un-American idea that the world owes them a living without working," would do much toward preventing crime, State Senator Caleb Baumes, author of New York's habitual criminal laws, told the Government Club.

"The big business of the American people is the bringing up of the American child," he said, "and the parent, teacher and preacher fall short in their duty. In my judgment intelligent spanking in the home might help salvage the possible wrecks of young people's lives."

PLANES BOUGHT IN U. S. FIGHT CALLES' FOES

Mexico City, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Airplanes, recently brought from the United States, have been ordered to the states of Guanajuato and Queretaro to take part in the campaign against the rebel groups which attacked Salamanca and Colon Sunday.

Strong cavalry forces, mobilized from Guanajuato under command of General Jaime Carrillo, military commandant of the State of Guanajuato, are pursuing the rebels.

Press dispatches say the attack in which thirteen rebels were killed was part of a new Catholic uprising, apparently organized in Queretaro City.

SEVENTY CAPTURED.

Seventy rebels were captured by Federal forces at Sarabia. Two priests were stated to be with them and these rebels were accused of staging the attack on Salamanca.

The closing of all church buildings in Queretaro has been ordered by Colonel Frans, commander of the garrison. He declared the churches were used by the conspirators as meeting places.

The government today was engaged in a campaign to exterminate guerilla bands operating in four western States. Airplanes are being used to locate and bomb rebel arrangements in the sparsely inhabited district. Troops guard highways and railroads entering the States, endeavoring to prevent any ammunition or food reaching the rebel bands.

The blockade was believed here to be applied only to those districts where the rebels are most active. The inhabitants are being concentrated in several large towns. Afterwards, all roads will be closed so as to isolate the rebels. Thus, they would find the towns deserted and be forced into surrender by hunger.

STATUE DESTROYED.

Dispatches from Silao, State of Guanajuato, says a statue of Christ, located in what is supposed to be the geographic centre of Mexico, has been destroyed by dynamite. The figure was on a hill near the town of Silao and was a monument dear to Catholics in Mexico. It was paid for by popular nation-wide subscription.

In continuance of the police campaign for enforcement of the religious laws two more private residences here have been raided.

Two priests were arrested on charges of confining masses. About 35 men and women were detained for attending services. It is believed that they will be released on paying fines.

CRANK THREATS TO HICKMAN CASE JUDGE

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 7.—Extra precautions are being taken to guard Judge J. J. Trabucco who is presiding at the trial of William Edward Hickman. This action, it was said, was the result of threat letters believed to be the work of cranks. Judge Trabucco said he was not alarmed.

For three solid hours Hickman heard about himself from the lips of Dr. Frank Mikels, State alienist. Dr. Mikels will resume the stand today. The gist of his testimony was that the kidnaper and killer of 12-year-old Marion Parker is sane.

He was the fourth State alienist to declare that Hickman is sane. At least two more State experts are yet to be heard.

Dr. Mikels described his examinations and questioning of the defendant. He had taken great pains to observe Hickman's reactions in the courtroom. He declared that Hickman possessed emotions, but showed great control in concealing them.

Hickman, he said, had showed indications of being elated when his mother testified, and when the photographs of the Parker girl's mutilated body were shown to the jury.

Dr. Mikels, related at length his questioning of Hickman with regard to the Ten Commandments. Hickman, in his replies, showed small respect for them, the alienist said.

Hickman hated his father and regarded his mother with an apparent mixture of disdain, love and pity, Dr. Mikels declared.

He related that Hickman had told him of seeing at a picture show shortly after killing and dismembering the Parker girl. This was the first time Hickman had felt remorse in that connection, he said.

SEEK PEACE IN BIG OIL WAR

New York, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—The New York Times says today that leading United States and European oil executives have taken definite steps to settle the dispute between the Standard Oil Company of New York and the Royal Dutch-Shell group of Europe over the purchase of Russian oil. The Times says it has learned that a possible basis for a peace settlement has been established in preliminary negotiations carried on in New York.

The Times credits representatives of the Anglo-American Oil Company, Ltd., and the Vacuum Oil Company of London with carrying on the preliminary negotiations. A representative of the Royal Dutch is expected to arrive on L-6 Hercegaria tonight.

The Anglo-American is a friendly competitor of the Royal Dutch in England. The Rockefeller interests, who are large stockholders in the Standard of New York and the Vacuum also, are part owners of the Anglo-American, the Times says.

The paper says the peacemakers are hopeful of averting the disastrous rivalry which seems to be threatened by the price-cutting war now being waged in India.

1,000 ENROLLED FOR U. S. TRAINING CAMPS

Enrollment of young men in New England for the Citizens' Training Camps has already exceeded any previous figures. Over 1,000 boys have signified their intention of returning to camp this Summer for further training. That this type of training is popular throughout the United States is indicated in Washington, where the appropriation for Citizens' Military Training Camps was increased to include funds for the training of 37,000 boys.

The original bill provided for only 30,000. As appointed, 2,500 boys from New England would be able to attend camps next July.

Chief of Police F. T. Smith announced today that a negro was being held in Durham as a suspect, and that Thomasville authorities were en route there to attempt to identify him as the slayer.

U. S. SEEKS TO PADLOCK 12 CHICAGO CABARETS

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Applications for temporary injunctions against 12 Chicago cabarets and night clubs raided Saturday is the immediate plan of the government in its effort to put padlocks on them, E. C. Yellowley, Federal prohibition administrator, said today. The government's goal is permanent restraining orders, he added.

SOCIETY WOMEN ESSAY SHINING COSTUMES, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Beads, Sequins and Precious Gems Add to Gorgeous Display Whenever Milady Makes Appearance at Opera or Supper Dance

WHEN, NOT SO VERY MANY MOONS AGO, MADAME LA MODE DECREED THAT EVERYTHING for feminine adornment of evenings should glisten, then did that somewhat whimsical matron set in motion a most decorative scheme. Modistes with lavish prodigality threaded countless glistening beads and sequins in every conceivable pattern on practically every gown. Jewelers administered to the craze for glitter with beautifully wrought purses and costume jewels. Inspired bootmakers added to slender evening slippers brilliant bands, or gorgeous buckles, or even entire heels studded with rhinestones.

AND IN THE OPERA HOUSE LAST EVENING ALL THIS GLITTER and gleam served excellently to create a gorgeous scene. Since Fashion says "glitter," glitter practically every one (of feminine persuasion) did. Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper's lovely crystal white frock had swinging fringes of beads. Her jewels were elaborately designed earrings and bracelets, of diamonds. And her slender silver shoes had brilliant heels. Mrs. H. Wendell Endicott completed a white gown, all gleaming beads, with the same pert heels on silver shoes. Mrs. Alvan Tufts Fuller wore slippers entirely covered with rhinestones. Her gown was beaded and, at her shoulder, flashed a diamond ornament.

DAZZLINGLY EFFECTIVE WAS THE GOLD LACE AND TINSEL gown Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr., wore, as hostess for a box group. Some of the fine pearls and diamonds from her jewel box added scintillation. Mrs. Malcolm Whelen Greenough's opera frock was Nile green, to which pearls gave a soft sheen. Miss Dorothy Lawrence wore a remarkably handsome frock of blue velvet, held at the shoulders with antique cut crystal bands. Mrs. William Gordon Means, petite and golden haired, wore a period frock of black velvet. Pearls, several strands of the lustrous beauties, shone softly against the black, and at her shoulders were clustered diamonds.

IMPERIAL CRIMSON VELVET AND GOLD tissue cleverly combined were by Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson, scarcely needed the gleam of jewels to enhance its picturesqueness. But, nevertheless, there were pearls at her throat and several bracelets on her wrists. A notable figure in the promenade was she of the voice of "liquid gold," Madame Mason. In a pale green frock frosted over with crystal beads, she was the center of an admiring circle. Mrs. Wallace Goodrich wore soft gray sequined and beaded, and some of her effective jewels, a handsome eardrop and pendant. Mrs. Hugh Bancroft's gown was black and white and long ropes of pearls and pearl eardrops added richness.

THE IMPRESSIVE GROUP IN THE DRAPER box included Mrs. James Dean, distinctly in the "gleamiest" mode with a sequined gown. Mrs. Dudley Boone, in blue velvet and pearls, had her charming young daughter, Miss Katharine Howe, for "Louise." Miss Howe's gay red velvet frock had brilliant shoulder ornaments. Mrs. Nathaniel Farwell Ayer carried an enormous ostrich fan, a yard long, with her pearl white moire gown. Mrs. Henry Crocker parr had a diamond necklet about her throat and her gown was black velvet. Pearls, in several long strands, were Mrs. George Dabney's jewels, and her gown pale rose and black crepe. Mrs. Leslie Soule's jewels were pearls, and her gown black velvet.

THE YOUNG SET TAKES ITS OPERA seriously. Which is, of course, the proper thing to do, since it is the younger set which will, if opera continues to resound in Boston, even briefly, be the guarantors and the committee. Miss Ellen Hallowell, radiant in ermine wrap and old blue crepe, had that pretty blonde bride, Mrs. George Burgess, in the family group that included Mr. and Mrs. N. Penrose Hallowell. Miss Caroline Saltonstall wore a draped black velvet frock and some handsome costume jewelry of semi-precious stones in dull gold.

MISS PAULINE PENNO, IN THE BOX GROUP WITH MR. and Mrs. Oliver Wolcott, was gorgeously arrayed in crimson velvet with pearls. Miss Olga Frothingham was in chablet yellow satin. Miss Eugenia Frothingham essayed the promenade crush swathed in a mouse gray velvet wrap. Against the jet black of Miss Helen Gray's frock pearls gleamed. Miss Eleanor Collier was in pale green. Miss Isabella Grandin's frock was dull gilt. Miss Anna Winslow, in the Cameron McRae Winslow party, wore rose velvet and a pearl necklace.

MORE THAN A CENTURY AGO HONORABLE BOSTON names were inscribed on the Board of "Lady Visitors of the Lying-In Hospital." And now, in the Year of Our Lord 1928 one still finds honorable Boston names similarly inscribed on the board of this honored and honorable institution. And these twentieth century matrons are working as earnestly and industriously for the hospital's welfare as did their prototypes of a bygone era long before benefits and drives had come to be so important a part of the daily social plan.

ALL OF WHICH IS BUT preliminary to the statement that the present day "Board" is putting on for the hospital on the evening of February 23, at the Hotel Statler, Commander Richard Byrd, aviator-explorer, to tell of his flight to the North Pole and his transatlantic dash. In what is positively his last lecture appearance before he takes wing for the South Pole. The first Board of Lady Visitors, in the wildest flight of imagination, never would have "stationed a birdman winging the skies to the Poles, or over the seas, or that that same birdman would speak for the institution they cherished.

MRS. THOMAS B. GANNETT is directing head of the forthcoming Hospital benefit. Miss Adeline D. Hooper is her able lieutenant. And otherwise such matrons of indisputable place in the social structure as Mrs. Robert Agassiz, Mrs. Francis I. Amory, Mrs. Harcourt Amory, Mrs. Edward L. Bigelow, Mrs. Henry Forbes Bigelow, Mrs. Gorham Brooks, Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, Mrs. Philip Dexter and Mrs. Walter Channewell are on the Board.

LIKEWISE MESDAMES William H. Claflin, Jr., Marshall Fabyan, Carl Greyfus, William E. Ladd, Horace Morison, Jesse Kashland, Neal Rantoul, Bayard Warren, Sinclair Weeks, Edward C. Wheeler, Jr., and Miss Eleanor Sohier.

No one is safe!

Policeman, 'phone operator, housewife or millionaire—every one of us, no matter who we are, may offend unknowingly

Secrets about body odor everyone should know

THE secret behind many a failure is . . . body odor.

People who offend are not wanted—either as employees or friends. You can readily appreciate why.

Yet, much as we abhor body odor, not one of us is safe from it. We have to perspire—or we'd die. And in winter, with activities indoors and warmer, stuffier rooms, body odor is more noticeable than ever.

Others detect body odor —the offender doesn't

Even on coldest days, our millions of pores give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste every 24 hours.

Whether we can see this body moisture or not, it is always odorous. And it shows no partiality. Without taking precautions, anyone—from day laborer to society leader—may offend.

	Body odor more noticeable in winter—due to stuffy rooms—closed windows.
1 Qt.	Pores give off as much as a quart of waste a day—even in coldest weather.
	Now, a purifying toilet soap. Its bland antiseptic lather keeps you safe from body odor.

No fear of embarrassment

And, curiously enough, once an odor becomes familiar to us, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it. That's why, very often, even fastidious people think they are safe—while actually they do offend.

Yet it's easy to keep away body odor. Simply wash and bathe often with the most delightful toilet soap in the world—Lifebuoy—it deodorizes.

The same mild, antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores.

Complexions, too, keep fresh and clear with Lifebuoy. Millions find it ideal for every toilet purpose.

A hygienic scent you'll enjoy

You will learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, yet which quickly evaporates after rinsing. And Lifebuoy instantly works up into a thick, creamy lather—even in hardest water. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

'I Deserve to Have My Life Beaten Out,' Cries Priddy

The Most Remarkable Personal Story of the Year, by a Real Hero

CHAPTER 26

THE transatlantic non-stop flight between New York and Paris was first brought into public consideration by Raymond Orteig, who, in 1919 issued a challenge to the aeronautical world by offering a prize of $25,000 to the first successful entrant. Details of the flight were placed in the hands of the National Aeronautic Association and a committee was appointed to form and administer the rules of the flight.

I first considered the possibility of the New York-Paris flight while flying the mail one night in the Fall of 1926. Several facts soon became outstanding. The foremost was that with the modern radial air-cooled motor, high lift airfoils and lightened construction, it would not only be possible to reach Paris, but, normal conditions, to land with a large reserve of fuel and have a high factor of safety throughout the entire trip as well.

I found that there were a number of public-spirited men in St. Louis sufficiently interested in aviation to finance such a project, and in December, 1926, I made a trip to New York to obtain information concerning planes, motors and other details connected with the undertaking.

In connection with any important flight there are a number of questions which must be decided at the start, among the most important of which are the type of plane and the number of motors to be used.

A monoplane, although just coming into general use in the United States, is much more efficient than a biplane for certain purposes, due to the lack of interference between wings, and consequently can carry a greater load per square foot of surface at a higher speed. A single-motored plane, while it is more liable to forced landings than one with three motors, has much less head resistance and consequently a greater cruising range.

Also there is three times the chance of motor failure with a tri-motored ship, for the failure of one motor during the first part of the flight, although it would not cause a forced landing, would at least necessitate dropping part of the fuel and returning for another start.

The reliability of the modern air-cooled radial engine is so great that the chances of an immediate forced landing due to motor failure with a single motor would, in my opinion, be more than counterbalanced by the longer cruising range and consequent ability to reach the other

FREE DAD TO GREET DAUGHTER

Laconia, N. H., Feb. 7 (A.P.)—Judge Frederick W. Fowler today gave Rudolph Kilinski, Russian immigrant, permission to leave the county jail to go to New York by automobile to meet his sixteen-year-old daughter, who was expected to arrive tonight on the S. S. Berengaria.

The girl, who is unable to speak English, left Minsk, Russia, for Ellis Island, New York, to rejoin her father, arranged for passage on the same ship Kilinski, who confessed a similar charge here, was convicted for stealing an automobile while intoxicated.

When Judge Fowler learned of the daughter's pending arrival, he detailed Deputy Police Chief Frank Bailey to accompany Kilinski to New York to meet the girl.

After Kilinski's return to this city he must complete his interrupted sentence.

NAVY BALLOONISTS FLY LOW OVER FITCHBURG

Fitchburg, Feb. 7 (A.P.)—A United States Navy balloon, which passed over this city shortly after 7 o'clock this morning, descended so low on Cushing street to North Lunenburg that the occupants could talk with persons on the street. There were four men in the balloon. They said they thought they were in Lewiston, Me. The balloon ascended and sailed out toward Ayer.

"Golf Widower," in $192 Taxi Chase, Traps Wife

Chicago, Feb. 7 (A.P.).—Walter J. Stein of Winnetka, self-styled "golf widower," is back in Chicago after a 385-mile taxicab chase that cost him $192.00, plus a tip, to testify in his divorce suit against Mrs. Ruth Stein.

Stein filed suit last October, charging he was a golf widower because his wife was on the links so much she had no time for their two children. Later, he named Keith Estelle of Florida and asked custody of the children.

Stein said he got word that his wife and Estelle had started for Florida, Saturday, so he hired a taxicab and trailed them to Indiana, thence to Madisonville, Ky., and to a hotel, where they registered. Then he sought the sheriff. They were fined $50 each, he said.

VARE MEN BOLT VOTE RECOUNT

Washington, Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—Recount of votes in the Smith-Vare senatorial contest was thrown into confusion today when Harry Hueppel, Philadelphia county commissioner and Vare's supervisor, bolted the session because he charged it was being "packed" with Wilson workers by the Reed slush fund committee.

A Virginia Democrat, Harry Turner, in charge of the recount, Selection of a Democrat supervisor astonished Republicans in the Senate and there were indications Turner might be ousted. He was chosen as a substitute for Leon R. Ripley, New Hampshire lawyer, who resigned after one look at the job. Ripley said he could not afford to spend three months on the task.

The recount was to start with Allegheny district. It will be extended to Philadelphia, Delaware, Lackawanna, Luzerne and Schuylkill counties, where ballots were seized.

The Reed slush fund committee meanwhile continued its inquiry into charges of corruption in the election.

EX-PASTOR DEPICTS 3 KILLINGS

Riverhead, N. Y., Feb. 7 (I.N.S.).—"I deserve to be taken back to Farmingdale and have my life beaten out with the very axe with which I destroyed three innocent lives," Claude Priddy, former minister and slayer of his wife and two sons, declared today.

Priddy is spending all his time reading spiritual books and Bible and writing letters to his friends. He intends to dedicate his life to "the people of the world."

Priddy was overcome with remorse, he wrote. "A wonderful career in college, splendid friendships and best of all, a gracious love which stayed with me ministering to my needs till I crept up behind and beat it out with an axe.

"Grand opportunities in two of these large churches. At Portland, Me., I did my best work. Then I was called to St. John's in Brooklyn and later to Stamford, Ct., where I fell.

"And nobody yet knows the depth to which I have sunk."

FALL RIVER FIRE PROBE SECRET

Fall River, Feb. 7.—In the room of a "star chamber" session, the press excluded, the officials in charge into the Fall River conflagration of last week began hearings at Central police station.

To the surprise of reporters and others who expected to listen to testimony, state Fire Inspector George C. Murphy, in charge of the Fall River district, declared the proceedings would be secret.

"Later I may make a statement, but I may not be authorized to," said Inspector Tallman and Irving Hall, both of Boston, who assisted Commissioner Murphy in the opening of the hearings, with most of the rooms in the Central police station.

Hall, state fire inspector, George G. Mansfield were speakers. Newspaper reporters attempted to question Murphy, but he left after Town Clerk Lee Hall, Murphy, Lt. C. and Hall were closeted for two or three hours.

British Treasury Given $2,500,000 to Reduce Debt

London, Feb. 7.—Chancellor of the Exchequer Winston Churchill announced that the British government had received a novel gift of $2,500,000 to be used for eventually reducing the national debt. The donor is anonymous.

The terms of the benefaction provide that the gift is to be managed in trust for the nation and the capital allowed to accumulate at compound interest over a long period of years. An act of Parliament was necessary to enable the government to accept the unprecedented gift.

FLIER LOVE WRAPPED IN FURS

New York, Feb. 7.—"The reports are absolutely ridiculous," said Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today in denying reports that domestic troubles had resulted from the proposed New York-to-Havana flight of her husband with Mabel Boll, the "Queen of Diamonds."

"We have been very much misquoted," Mrs. Lindbergh said. "I know most people hear that Mr. Levine and I have had an argument or something.

"About another one. I'll say emphatically that Levine's plans to take Mabel Boll in the plane on the flight, the flier's wife reiterated her denial.

"Of course I'm not jealous. Again I say we have been terribly misquoted. Just a moment, and I'll call Mr. Levine."

Levine, when asked to make a statement regarding the rumors of domestic tribulations, promptly became annoyed.

"Why should I make a statement?" he asked. "There is nothing to the reports. We have had no trouble whatsoever. There is no problem and we have both been misquoted. There's nothing to that story at all."

Levine then left Mrs. Lindbergh and Miss Boll with reporters. They took how many coats they had and how many gowns they were going to take. They are especially proud of their white fox muff, carved coat, leopard skin coat, polish wrap."

WILLIAM HODGE DELIGHTS IN NEW PLAY

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

A WAY, to mean laughter always is in step with the times. In a mystery comedy of crime a satirical prosecutor may pronounce a certain accused person guilty because of the fact that he has a large gathering of hair on the head. In the next play, the same prosecutor may say that the accused person is innocent because of the fact that he has a large gathering of hair on the head. Or, in a play against women, the author may make a misogynist say that women are no good because they are women, and in the next play, by the same author, the misogynist may say that women are no good because they are not women. Or, in a play about a man who is a confirmed bachelor, the author may make the hero say that he is a confirmed bachelor because he has never met the right woman, and in the next play by the same author, the hero may say that he is a confirmed bachelor because he has met the right woman.

William Hodge

Or, in the case of William Hodge, because he is funny. Because he is funny in the first play, because he is funny in the second play, because he is funny in the third play, because he is funny in the fourth play, because he is funny in the fifth play, because he is funny in the sixth play, because he is funny in the seventh play, because he is funny in the eighth play, because he is funny in the ninth play, because he is funny in the tenth play, because he is funny in the eleventh play, because he is funny in the twelfth play, because he is funny in the thirteenth play, because he is funny in the fourteenth play, because he is funny in the fifteenth play, because he is funny in the sixteenth play, because he is funny in the seventeenth play, because he is funny in the eighteenth play, because he is funny in the nineteenth play, because he is funny in the twentieth play, because he is funny in the twenty-first play, because he is funny in the twenty-second play, because he is funny in the twenty-third play, because he is funny in the twenty-fourth play, because he is funny in the twenty-fifth play, because he is funny in the twenty-sixth play, because he is funny in the twenty-seventh play, because he is funny in the twenty-eighth play, because he is funny in the twenty-ninth play, because he is funny in the thirtieth play, because he is funny in the thirty-first play, because he is funny in the thirty-second play, because he is funny in the thirty-third play, because he is funny in the thirty-fourth play, because he is funny in the thirty-fifth play, because he is funny in the thirty-sixth play, because he is funny in the thirty-seventh play, because he is funny in the thirty-eighth play, because he is funny in the thirty-ninth play, because he is funny in the fortieth play, because he is funny in the forty-first play, because he is funny in the forty-second play, because he is funny in the forty-third play, because he is funny in the forty-fourth play, because he is funny in the forty-fifth play, because he is funny in the forty-sixth play, because he is funny in the forty-seventh play, because he is funny in the forty-eighth play, because he is funny in the forty-ninth play, because he is funny in the fiftieth play, because he is funny in the fifty-first play, because he is funny in the fifty-second play, because he is funny in the fifty-third play, because he is funny in the fifty-fourth play, because he is funny in the fifty-fifth play, because he is funny in the fifty-sixth play, because he is funny in the fifty-seventh play, because he is funny in the fifty-eighth play, because he is funny in the fifty-ninth play, because he is funny in the sixtieth play, because he is funny in the sixty-first play, because he is funny in the sixty-second play, because he is funny in the sixty-third play, because he is funny in the sixty-fourth play, because he is funny in the sixty-fifth play, because he is funny in the sixty-sixth play, because he is funny in the sixty-seventh play, because he is funny in the sixty-eighth play, because he is funny in the sixty-ninth play, because he is funny in the seventieth play, because he is funny in the seventy-first play, because he is funny in the seventy-second play, because he is funny in the seventy-third play, because he is funny in the seventy-fourth play, because he is funny in the seventy-fifth play, because he is funny in the seventy-sixth play, because he is funny in the seventy-seventh play, because he is funny in the seventy-eighth play, because he is funny in the seventy-ninth play, because he is funny in the eightieth play, because he is funny in the eighty-first play, because he is funny in the eighty-second play, because he is funny in the eighty-third play, because he is funny in the eighty-fourth play, because he is funny in the eighty-fifth play, because he is funny in the eighty-sixth play, because he is funny in the eighty-seventh play, because he is funny in the eighty-eighth play, because he is funny in the eighty-ninth play, because he is funny in the ninetieth play, because he is funny in the ninety-first play, because he is funny in the ninety-second play, because he is funny in the ninety-third play, because he is funny in the ninety-fourth play, because he is funny in the ninety-fifth play, because he is funny in the ninety-sixth play, because he is funny in the ninety-seventh play, because he is funny in the ninety-eighth play, because he is funny in the ninety-ninth play, because he is funny in the one hundredth play.

AUTHOR, AUTHOR!

It was inevitable that one of the Richmond-Crinkhite combinations that Mr. Hodge was getting should, one day, be sold to some author of the other's plays who paid for comfortable seats. Of course, the author of "Nothing Sacred" is the one in the hot seat for damned if he played an actor who was getting the order of the boot because he lost to the music hall. It all ends, and how, in a shady deal which embraced everybody except a number of excellent actors and actresses who were in the show, you might have suspected it would end—and it does well. But it was nothing like that. Instead you and William Hodge honored by being allowed to see another mystery comedy actor-author add a lovely interior decorator out for no good purpose.

There was need for calm and no hysterical exploitation of the haunted nobbin aged scene and dating feature was to resume its waking influence upon the Hodge family would be safe to assume. The author of "Nothing Sacred" is not one to let the playgoer down. Hodge never was better in his life, and his support—but the plays most laughable moments extend a vote of thanks to the author of this truly side-splitting opportunity.

Introducing the vaudeville bill is Charlie Abbott and his famous "Mountain Band," presenting a repertoire of hoffdown's. Hoch acted the part to a point of exquisite. Charlie Abbott leads in the fun making, assisted by the "mountain" musicians and a graceful solo dancer, Miss Jessie Bromley.

Carl Rose and Harry Fox, adept comedian with his fast routine of humorous songs and talk. He is assisted by Miss Mona Ricardel.

Primrose Four, one of the oldest quartets in vaudeville, received the bright pieces, indulged in some extremely melodious singing. Their wheels, made it a grand night, to support them was a long roster of jazz and syncopation on the side. Helen Gilmore, Carol Dever and Edward Conner also deliciously entertained in operations, while William Cullen dangled fun-ny and duly sang many popular numbers. The mystery drama seemed urgent and many times may have been the cause of a shudder or two.

Mr. Cullen, but never a louder one.

"Straight Thru The Door" was fully entertainment. He also wore out his bad actor make-up and his virtues were genuine and hearty. It was just a night of laughs.

CAST SELECTED FOR "PATIENCE" AT B. U.

More than fifty students will take part in the annual production of the Gilbert and Sullivan Association of Boston University at Jordan Hall, May 2 and 3. The association which staged the "Mikado" and "Pirates of the Sultan Hotel, but chooses "Patience" as the play for this year.

Cowper, Montreal, Canada; Grosvenor, Howard Lenard of Wayland; Bunthorne, Kate Smith; Lady Jane, Lois Lund of Everett; Angela, Doris Stinson of Attleboro; Lane, Ethel Hall of Somerville, and Patience, Alice Sherrin of Cambridge.

Rules Board Secretary Explains Grid Changes

LANGFORD EXPLAINS CHANGES IN GRID RULES

By WILLIAM S. LANGFORD

Secretary of the National Football Rules Committee

New York, Feb. 7—A special review of the 1927 season was made at the meeting of the football rules committee of the national colleges at Atlantic City held at Absecon, N. J., February 1 and 5.

[illegible]

SEVERAL MINOR CHANGES

[illegible]

New Rules Rather Hazy to Local Grid Coaches

[illegible]

"On any other such pass, other than a pass from scrimmage, the ball shall be dead at the point of the catch, if caught in the field of play, or at the point of recovery, if touched by a player of the defensive team."

DESIRED RESULT

[illegible]

The effect of this will be to do away with all incentive to the backfield man to catch a forward pass behind the line of scrimmage. It is felt that the backfield man will not risk a fumble if he knows that he will be tackled at the point of the catch, and is thrown it is recovered by the passing side."

[illegible]

"The change in the lateral pass rule will help some because it will do away with a great deal of loose ball handling by backs who were protected by the rule last year. It will not, however, curtail the use of the pass on teams that used it to a great extent last year for they were so well drilled in it that they never fumbled.

"Doing away with the distinction between the fumble and the muff is only a minor change and it will only be a great help to the officials. The screen pass remains as stated is not very clear and I believe that more should be said about it if the report given is final."

Charlie Gorman Sure Knows His Apples

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 7 (A.P.)—Charles Gorman, Canada, and Valentine Bialas, American, members of speed skating teams entered in the Olympic Winter sports, have got a real taste of the high cost of living here. They both vowed that Canada and the United States are cheap countries in which to reside when compared with Switzerland.

Returning from practice, the two skaters sized some apples in a shop window. "Back home," "I can buy three bushels of apples in New Brunswick for 60 cents," said Gorman.

Slattery and Gautreau to Be St. Joe Guests

Manager Tom Slattery of the Boston Bruins and Walter "Dit" Gautreau, second baseman of the Bruins, will be guests of honor at the athletic night of the St. Joseph's Boys' Club here tonight, at Bulkley School, Lesson street.

"Jerry" by ELENORE MEHERIN AUTHOR of "CHICKIE"

A Story of Mad Moonlight Kisses and a Wonderful Young Girl

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR

Jerry King, good-looking, charming and 19, meets Saxon Rhodes, a young Boston architect, and falls in love with him at first sight. Her fascinating mother, Mabel, warns her that idealists like Saxon make unsatisfactory husbands. In spite of the fact that Jerry sees Saxon kissing Tess Willis, who has a great deal of money, she still clings to her ideal and refuses a matrimonial proposal from Hugo Rose, a wealthy young suitor. Saxon runs across her while she is motoring and later they kiss each other rapturously in the moonlight. He takes her to lunch and Tess Willis comes to their table and makes a date with Saxon.

Mabel tells Jerry she'll probably not count on marrying Saxon—that he's a mere plaything, if she had better give Saxon up—she gets a reassuring note from him.

Six months after the moonlight kiss Jerry confesses to Saxon that she is in love with him.

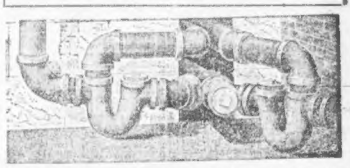
"The Congressman's Son"—True Story by Frisby's 'Lost Child'



Pneumatic tube system installed by Frisby to dispatch billets d'armour to the old hollow oak.

CHAPTER THREE

MY MOTHER, when questioned by the District Attorney, declared that Frisby never left any written record of his love life.

This was a lie, and mother often laughed about it afterward.

As a matter of fact, Horace Frisby was always tucking notes under people's doors. He would ring the bell and then dash into the night, stopping only to click his heels together now and again.

"We used to exchange notes in the hollow of the old oak tree," says my mother, in a letter to the Starving Armenians in 1916. "In fact, he wrote poetry until the authorities intervened.

"And yet there was a tenderness in his verse that mirrored his undernourished soul.

He balmed authorship in pieces of fancy writing that are frequently accredited to others, such as 'The Charge of the Light Brigade,' 'End o fa Perfect Day,' 'The Song Is Ended, but the Melody Lingers On,' and 'Tennison's Farewell to His Troops.'"

I need not take space here to quote any of Horace Frisby's poems, but will do so without fear or favor.

For instance, he wrote in September, 1898, as follows—

When life is blue
And clouds are dark—
Remember the Maine.
When all about you
Friends are unfree—
Remember the Maine.
Keep your smile all the while,
Keep your smile all the while,
Spread your sail for Happiness Isle—
Remember the Maine."

In fact, it was the above verse that won for him his scholarship in Personality College, St. Louis, more of which you will hear later.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS -:- By HELEN ROWLAND

EVERY man suffers from a sense of guilt toward woman; declares a famous neurologist—particularly toward the woman he loves.

That is why he so often spoils his wife, and even why he lets the goldiggers mulct him, without a protest. It's a sop to his conscience.

So THAT'S it, is it? We have always thought "that guilty feeling" came afterward, when he discovered that he had spent the rent money or the price of the new car his wife wanted, on a peroxide blonde.

Be that as it may, the average man DOES go through life with a guilty feeling toward the woman who loves him. That is what causes that slumbering look of apology or resentment you see in a married man's eyes.

A woman can make a man feel guilty just by a casual glance at his corset, or by picking a fleck off his coat lapel. He never knows WHAT she has discovered—but he knows there's enough!

Five minutes after she has decided to marry him a woman shows herself a man's guide, monitor, conscience and censor; and from that moment he goes through life like a prisoner at the bar, constantly explaining himself and forever on the defensive.

It is "that guilty feeling" that prompts a guilty man to bring home roses in order to lull his wife's suspicions—and makes an innocent man AFRAID to bring home roses, for fear of arousing his wife's suspicion.

It is "that guilty feeling" which fills one man with an inferiority complex and makes him afraid to drive his own car, tis his own evening tie or express his own opinions for fear he will be promptly criticized. And it is the same feeling which makes another man tramp and about around the house, and bully the servants just to show a woman that he ISN'T afraid of her.

It is "that guilty feeling" which makes one man afraid to look at a woman in his wife's presence—and which drives another man from a nagging wife straight to the arms of any little dumb bell who will admire him, comfort him and tell him how WONDERFUL he is.

* * *

Somehow, a woman has the faculty of making a man FEEL guilty, even when he is as innocent as a lamb. It's always has the subconscious suspicion that she is going to "jump on him" for something, accuse him of something or correct him for something.

* * *

That is the cause of the sullen, defiant look you so often see in a man's eyes, the moment he enters his wife's presence. That is what fills him with alibis, nerves dyspepsia and fiascos. And that is what makes the average bachelor fight matrimony to the last ditch.

Lots of husbands have the look of naughty schoolboys, constantly trying to please, fool or placate "Teacher."

Even when a woman DOESN'T suspect her husband, he always suspects that she suspects him. And that is why the psychologists say that woman are "posts."

MOTHER!

Look at Child's Tongue if Sick, Cross, Feverish

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When feverish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomachache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages, and for grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

FORBES TALKS ON CALIFORNIA RESOURCES

By B. C. FORBES

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 7.—There's a buoyancy, a breeziness, about the outdoorsiness here that you don't find among the people in most States. They exude optimism, confidence, faith. They are intensely loyal to their own section, their own State. You are mine, is born in their every utterance. The sensible out-of-doors.

Back East there is a notion abroad that all that things have been going ever since the gold rush of '49. California. Well, it has been busy ever since.

B. C. Forbes

facts, into the official figures. Actual results do not warrant pessimism.

First let me say that California ranks first for the whole country in petroleum resources, second in lumber, second in mineral output, third in value of all 1927 farm crops, fourth in total wealth and income tax, sixth in population, seventh in per capita wealth.

Her last year's farm crops were estimated at $425,342,000. Her farm land acreage has increased 12 per cent. since 1921. Average yield of fruit per acre is 5½ tons. She has 150 pounds in Kern County, 800 in Joaquin Valley, 561 pounds, and for the whole valley, 441 pounds.

The financial valley in California, of which we hear much, in 1926 shipped 65,000 carloads of carefully packed products from 275,000 acres of irrigated farms, equal to one carload for every man, woman and child in the valley.

Now let's answer the question, "How's business?"

There has been some falling-off in certain lines during the Pacific Coast as compared with the banner 1926—27 period, though this year will be governed by rainfall; so far all's well. Industrial conditions and prospects are generally regarded as such lines as building and building materials, automobiles, agricultural implements, livestock and many manufactures.

The main source of agricultural interest is movement nearer from prairie to seaboard, with the railroads attacking the problem.

'LINDY' SHOE APPEARS

Atlantic City, N. J., Feb. 7.—"Lindy" shoes, the "Lindy" style shoes are appearing on the horizon, says Jesse Adler of Adler Brothers Company of the Atlantic City Committee of the National Shoe Retailers' Association of the City, who has been in Boston a few days at The Harvester.

"A modified, broader, narrower than the present fashion model of the vogue, will be known as the 'Lindy' shoe of the future," predicts Mr. Adler. "Owing with this style will be the 'Lindy' a slenderer, graceful appearance, and will be constructed as to make the wearer feel he is 'walking on air.'

"Tans and grays will sell readily, with the shades of tans ranging from a lemon shade to deep brown, and perforated shoes with and without plenty of stitching and with [illegible] will be popular," he concludes.

MILLIONAIRES UNAWARE OF OWN WEALTH

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor

"I don't know if I'm a billionaire, and I don't care anyway," says Henry Ford. It has been our understanding that very few multimillionaires are able from time to time to keep a very accurate estimate of their fortunes. One very rich man quoted a few months ago fixed a figure of $1,000,000 as the point at which one's sole duty was to find out how much this rich man was worth. Within a few weeks the attempt was abandoned as futile.

Robert W. Stewart, multimillionaire Standard Oil magnate, who figures in the U. S. Senate inquiry, while not a frequent visitor to New England, has several close financial and friendly connections here. Boston and Worcester banking interests have been estimated, I am told, with several of the prospering oil companies in which the Stewart interests were leaders. Mr. Stewart was quoted as telling the Senators he didn't know how much he was "worth." His estimate was given as "probably more than a hundred millions." Wealth in the millions will not astound numerous members of the Class A section, but how much wealth themselves. Mr. Stewart was a railroad attorney early in his career.

H. B. Thayer, chairman of American Telephone, which rivals the cable companies in cutting trans-atlantic telephony via Houlton, Me., finds the outlook for "continued prosperity is good. "He is on his way in the West Indies for a three weeks' trip. Mr. Thayer was born at Northfield, Vt., lives at New Canaan, Conn., recall that, way back in 1918, Mr. Thayer, visiting at the Hotel Touraine, spoke enthusiastically of wireless telephony across the Atlantic.

"One hundred years old and still going strong" — is the slogan of the Wachusett Mills in Gardner, Woolen and worsted concern, running 24 hours a day, 6 days a week, running day and night for the past nine years. The property sold for $25,000 in 1905 and was recently appraised for $400,000, consolidation of which with the Goodyear Cotton Mills, Inc. at Killingly.

This Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. subsidiary is making rapid progress of continuous operation. It has 900 employes, which figure, before the last few years, all workers on full time. The number of hours allowed in the week has been cut to 40 and there are some few of others that can complete their week's work are invited to make us acquainted with the facts.

It took a $25,000 fire last week in the Germania mills at Holyoke to call widespread attention to this plant, which runs a night force the time suffered its first serious fire since it opened with a force of several years.

Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols acts promptly when big opportunities arise to benefit Boston. His latest activity, which calls for action here is clearing the way for the $1,200,000 plant of the U. S. Gypsum Co., largest of its kind in the world, at Mystic docks, Charlestown. U. S. Gypsum shares have been traded in for years on the New York curb along with the leading Standard Oil and other big industrial shares.

COLLIER NIGHT OVER WLOE

Franklin Collier's third cartoon drawing lesson will be put on the air from the Boston Evening American Daily "Advertiser" studio of WLOE at 7 o'clock tonight, for this occasion, the Boston Evening American cartoonist will again draw some famous character whose features may also be drawn by radio listeners, merely following Collier's instructions.

The drawings, which are among the most popular features on WLOE, are accomplished by tracing lines from letter to letter on a section of the newspaper. Have a copy of today's Boston Evening American handy, ready to turn to the page which Collier will indicate. A soft, black lead pencil is the only other necessary article.

Miss Anne Sullivan, soprano, will give a fifteen-minute program of ballads, beginning at 7:30. There will follow a quartet of an hour of music by Leon Berger orchestra under the direction of Frank Leave.

BARNEY FAGAN TELLS OF HIS STAGE DEBUT

This story might aptly be titled "The Memories of Barney Fagan, world-famous song and dance man—the country's indisputable Minstrel of Fame."

It isn't very often Barney turns back the pages of his life seventy years to those days of '64 when he embarked on an eminent minstrel career following his shining example with Joe Murphy, the blackface clansman of song in those days.

His early childhood, when he spent fishing for smelts off the Battery Wharf, where his dad was wharfinger, is replete with pleasant reminiscences, and interwoven with the singing and stepping days in the Boston Museum and the old Howard Athenaeum.

IN LOCAL SHOW NOW.

Not often does Barney talk about those sacred things, but the old North Ender was in a talkative mood today. The scenes of his boyhood loomed brightly before the shiny dome of the head he bore and Barney succumbed. He told of the theatre where elders kept him.

Barney looked back from his present specialty in "The Sidewalks of New York," which thrill with memories of old-timers who view the production specifically for Fagan's turn.

And for retrospection he sang a tune—the tune which he imitated Murphy by and which was later to bring him fame and a stage career. He sang softly:

"As I was going down the street the other afternoon,
At the crossing of the walk I met a pretty octoroon.
She looked at me so slyly, just as I was passing by,
I never shall forget her little darling, roguish eye.

It turned around to look at her, and others did the same;
She was so much attraction that I wasn't much to blame.
She was dressed in height of fashion, high-heel boots and mustketoon,
I felt so queer, my heart went with that pretty octoroon."

"And that started Barney Fagan on a singing career," he smiled. "It is a vivid recollection that I bring back with me on the stage of the Morris Brothers' Opera House on Washington street opposite the Old South Church, with Nape Loblin, Dan Gardner, Lew Dockstader and Tim Nolan, the latter a boy soprano, in pit conducting, in December of 1864. I was fifteen then."

"And on that program was a favorite New England comedian, Dan McGinness, idol then. The presentation was a skit called, "A Trip Around the World."

STARTED AT AGE OF 5.

Fagan started his career at the age of five taking bits here and there. He was fifteen when finally he became a minstrel. In 1876 the team of Dick Golden and Harry Dixie dissolved, and Fagan became a partner with Golden, appearing in "Evangeline" at the Boston Museum.

He has been accorded the title of the world's greatest dancer, an aidedness becoming the chief features of the company, Barlow, Wilson, Primrose and Fagan.

In '85 he launched his own show with Billy Sweatman, Billy Rice, in the partnership. They played the Boston Museum. He has produced numerous shows, "The Phantom Guard," perhaps the most outstanding.

Four years later he wrote and made famous "My Gal's a Highborn Lady," which has stood as a posterity, as has his verse, "When Reuben Next Again."

"I don't intend retiring from the stage," Fagan said. "I'll continue booting until I have realized my greatest hope, that of a vast fortune from a moving picture theatre which I've invented."

FALL RIVER TEACHERS ACCUSE STOCK BROKER

Fall River, Feb. 7.—Miss Leah Sorett, principal of the Susan H. Wixon School; Miss Mary E. Healey, teacher at the Fulton Street School, and Miss Lillian A. Cain, teacher at the James Madison Morton Junior High School, have filed complaints against John F. Mullen, Newton Centre stock broker charging him with bribery.

Mullen is already under bonds of $20,000 on similar charges and will be arraigned Friday on the charges of the Fall River teachers. According to the teachers, Mullen took more than $20 000 from them on the promise to buy stocks for them, but never did it.

SAYS HAMILTON MADE MONEY IN 1919-20

Further testifying before Judge William A. Burns of the Superior Court, Felix Rackemann, president of the Hamilton Manufacturing company, in the suit of Hans Beck and other minority stockholders brought to hold directors of that company personally liable for losses amounting to $4,000,000, said he believed that in 1919 and 1920 the mill made money.

He added, he did not think that condition held true in all the years of the World War. During one of those years the dividend to stockholders was increased from 5 to 8 per cent.

Asked if the company was selling all it could produce without much trouble, Rackemann replied that it was selling a large amount of yarn to tire people. In answer to a question as to conditions in 1919, Rackemann said there was a net operating profit of $875,000. Some of this was used for machinery and improvements.

Dividends of $130,000 were paid and there was a gain, roughly, of $235,000 in the profit and loss account. Experts agreed that Hamilton goods were good.

In 1920 Rackemann was of opinion that the cotton industry was feeling the competition of the Southern mills more keenly, also the tendency of women to use only silk. He said that he recalled in the second half of 1921 the company wrote down its inventory in excess of $1,000,000. This was done because of the shrinkage of market conditions.

The condition of the market was discussed at a meeting of the directors in January, Rackemann said, but he did not recall that any statement from the treasurer was asked for.

CLOSE CONTESTS IN BURLINGTON ELECTION

Burlington, Feb. 7.—Four sharp contests featured the annual town election here, and a large vote was cast. Out of a total 548 voters, 456 votes were polled.

The closest contest was for moderator, in which Horace H. Skelton defeated Joseph M. McDowell by four votes, 293 to 289. There may be a recount. Five candidates sought for the three offices on the Board of Selectmen for one year. According to the teachers, Mullen took more than $20 000 from them on the promise to buy stocks for them, but never did it.

'LOUISE' SUNG TO FULL HOUSE AT OPERA

By MOSES SMITH

Charpentier's "Louise" opened the second week of the stay of the Chicago Opera Company at the Boston Opera House with a good deal more of real music than "La Gioconda" opened the first. The audience, which filled the house, applauded the performers with enthusiasm.

"Louise," which was first produced in 1900, is one of the great masterpieces of French opera, indeed, by some, the very greatest. But even though many of us would have it yield to the "oldest" "Carmen" or to that mysterious work that followed it two years later, Debussy's "Pelleas et Melisande," there is no denying the infinite charm of Charpentier's musical romance, the artistic unity he achieves between text and music.

WELL WRITTEN SCORE.

One of the reasons for this, of course, is the fact that Charpentier wrote his own libretto. But more important is the beautiful scoring of the music, the admirable way in which he writes for the voice, the self-imposed restraint exerted through every page. And though the work is modern in tone, though dissonance is used with freedom, it has a universal appeal. It is as has been maintained, "Pelleas" is a musician's opera, an opera for the connoisseur's, while the acrimonious "Carmen" in its wide popularity. And it will continue to grow in appeal for many years to come.

The performance of last night, while it had moments of charm and even gripping power, was not altogether up to the standard set by Mary Garden, as Louise, was alternately convincing and unreal in a role which she must have been fond of her great ones. The aria, "Depuis le jour" was beautifully delivered with exactly the right emotion and feeling. On the other hand, the fourth act, in so far as Miss Garden's share in it was concerned, was grotesque. She gave a typical example of the kind of exacting, of meaningless gestures, that is known as "emoting" in the movies.

ACTING IS GOOD.

This was the more regrettable since Edmond Clement as Vanni-Marcoux, cast as the father, acted with great power. His exclamation, "Louise, Louise!" as his daughter returns to her much-desired freedom, his pleading and moving speeches we remember on any stage, dramatic as well as operatic. Withal the man is a thorough artist, never straining for effect, either vocally or dramatically. Nevertheless, never artful-ing. Each of his characterizations is a marvel of verisimilitude, in no way resembling another role. Legitimate, as much as possible, banished his own personality from the character, even to the point where he is desirable to do so.

Mona Paulee's singing of Louise was improved from a to b per cent.

Yeend if the company was selling all it could produce without much trouble, Rackemann replied that it was selling a large amount of yarn to tire people. In answer to a question as to conditions in 1919, Rackemann said there was a net operating profit of $875,000. Some of this was used for machinery and improvements.

Dividends of $130,000 were paid and there was a gain, roughly, of $235,000 in the profit and loss account. Experts agreed that Hamilton goods were good.

FIRST NATIONAL TO FILM 'THE SQUALL'

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7.—Censorship, generally speaking, "The Squall" is full of pitfalls. Dramatically speaking, it is full of highlights that ought to flicker on the screen with color and interest. At any rate, First National has purchased this play, which occupied a New York stage for ten long months.

There are two feminine roles of interest, the one played by Alma Rubens as the mother, probably the stellar role and that of the young gypsy girl, who comes into the home and lends her son astray as well as her husband. A wanton is this gypsy whose greatest hobbies are in beads and money, a tricky little creature without a moral to her name.

Some way I can't see the movies daring to bring this story in with a father and son fall in love with the same woman. That is practically the story of "The Squall," if one can dignify their emotion with the word love.

Yet, since "Sadie Thompson" passed muster strange times have come upon the movies. Anita Loos Nilsson is my choice for the mother, and Lina Basquette, Lane Veles or some of the girls of this type, for the gypsy.

A YEAR ago Evelyn Brent was regarded as a fair actress, a girl who would do very well in pictures that cost, say $50,000 to produce. Then she went to Italy with, in that brief twelve months Evelyn Brent has become one of the most sought after actresses in Hollywood.

To me her case is one of the most interesting in the history of Famous Players-Lasky, the difference male stars are lined up asking for her as the leading lady. Two years ago not one of them would have had her. I found that prove what one or two good pictures will do for an actress?

Clara Bow Chatterton, originally announced to play opposite Adolphe Menjou in "Super of the Galettes," will now be seen in the same thing else and Evelyn Brent will be the girl who's not leading lady. You never can tell by the movies from day to day what is going to happen, unless it might be unsafe to keep a fortuneteller with you.

LAURA LA PLANTE must have gone to Honolulu very well satisfied. Just before she took the boat she discussed with certain people the possibility of her playing in Harry O. Hoyt, as a possible story. This gives her a chance for comedy as well as a dramatic role.

Lewis Stone, who seems to have become almost as closely associated with First National in the old days, is mentioned as one of the leading characters in Johnny Barron is also a possibility.

Although this story is not sensational in the sense of being extraordinary, it seems almost impossible to get a verification of it, yet one of the principals was in the cast. That ought to be good enough for us, I think.

Merchant Marine

FARMERS Saved the Jones Bill

The vote of 53 to 31 by which the Senate at Washington passed the Jones bill, to expand the merchant marine and to maintain it under Government control, shows how the American people in the past year have developed an interest in marine affairs. We are becoming sea-minded.

Nine of the ten Republican Senators from New England voted AGAINST the bill: Hale, Gould, Keyes, Moses, Greene, Gillett, Metcalf, McLean and Bingham.

The two Democrats, Walsh and Gerry, joined with 31 other Democrats, 19 Republicans and the Farmer-Labor Senator to PASS it.

ALL the New England Senators want an American merchant marine, the division being on the question of method. Senator Hale of Maine regards it as "absolutely essential" that something be done, and done at this session, to build up American shipping. If it can be done through a subsidy he should like to see it done that way, as would Senator Moses of New Hampshire and Senator Bingham of Connecticut. But if the only way by which we are to have a merchant marine is by Government ownership and operation, the Senator from Maine is prepared ready to adopt it:

"If it can be done in no other way than through Government ownership and operation I say it should be done in that way rather than not at all, but I do not believe that we have yet come to that pass. The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries I understand is working out a plan for a privately owned and operated merchant marine. If that bill comes over to us, as I believe it will during this session, I am hopeful that some plan for private ownership and operation can be worked out."

The Senator from Washington whose name is attached to the bill would himself like to see private development, but did come to the conclusion that it was not possible to pass a bill through Congress which would encourage private capital to do the work.

How did this bill come to be passed with the Republican leaders against it and in the face of the President's demand for an early transfer of the fleet to private hands?

According to correspondents, the FARMERS of the Mid West, the Northwest, the intermountain country and the South were "indirectly" responsible.

The men on the farms, according to these observers, "are convinced that the Shipping Board has done more than a little to help in the marketing of exportable surplus crops and in holding down ocean freight rates."

Advocates of the Shipping Board say that but for the competitive menace of the large number of Shipping Board vessels that could be put in commission OCEAN FREIGHTS WOULD HAVE ROCKETED AND COSTS OF EXPORT WOULD HAVE RISEN UNTIL THE PROFITS OF AMERICAN FARMERS WOULD HAVE BEEN "CUT TO THE BONE."

For sixty years, every effort to get through Congress the subsidy which private ownership says it needs has failed. The practical issue before the Senate, therefore, was whether to keep the merchant marine we now have, and add to it by the only way apparently available, namely, through direct Government action, or to admit defeat and let our marine slowly expire.

There ARE numerous ways of getting a merchant marine; the important thing is that we have it. Only those who would rather have NO merchant marine than one owned in part by the Government will regret the substantial majority by which the Senate passed the Jones bill.

Morbid

No Accounting for Tastes

Some forms of morbidity are hard to understand. Several couples in Los Angeles have applied to rent the flat where Hickman murdered little Marian Parker.

There is something half understandable in the desire of some people to see a single execution. Not many people want to see more than one. But it is much more difficult to understand why a couple should want to take as their abode the scene of the most hideous crime of the century.

Very Valuable Glass

Especially in These Quick Shooting Days

This picture shows the police of San Francisco testing glass that resisted bullets from high powered police pistols. The glass was later to be installed in thirty armored police cars. And doubtless "stick-'em-up" gentlemen were grieved when they fired their artillery at the police cars, and nothing happened to the policemen, but "plenty" happened to them.

This unbreakable glass might interest Americans made nervous by excessive prosperity. A rich man is often nervous, sometimes afraid to "go down town" in his glass enclosed automobile.

It isn't that he fears injury, so far as he personally is concerned. But he hates the thought of anything that might make him leave so much behind.

Some very prosperous Americans have actually fitted glass of this kind into their cars—in the windshield in front of the driver and in the windows on either side of them, and over the rear seat.

Many interesting things can be done with glass. It could be arranged, as Henry Ford has done in his new windshields and as Mr. Moscovics did before him, so that in case of collision it will not shatter or harm the inmates of the car.

Glass can be spun out in sheets that can be rolled up and be used for hotbeds.

It can be treated in such a way as to admit the health-giving actinic rays of the sun, rays that cure rickets in chil-

FORD INTERESTING BECAUSE HUMAN

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I ATTENDED the opening display of the new Ford cars. There was an enormous crowd, some 50,000 people.

There were all sorts and conditions of men, rich as well as poor, and they crowded about looking at the new car.

"Hucoone Ford gets all this publicity?" said the dealer in a rival car to me. "I suppose it is because he has so much money and can pay for it."

But there are other reasons than this. The principal reason lies in the fact that Ford is an interesting figure because he is so human.

Even Ford's faults endear him to the public. He made a mistake when he attacked the Jews, but his frank apology afterwards for this mistake was liked by the people, even the Jews.

Everybody makes mistakes and we somehow have a fondness for a person who acknowledges the corn.

His peace ship was not a very popular move, but the public recognized his good intentions and pardoned the folly of the enterprise on that account.

Altogether he is a dramatic figure.

He has made a success of his business and the people like a successful man.

And he has made this business a success, not by hokum nor by anything injurious to the public. He had made a good car cheap. After all that may be said about the "tin Lizzie" it will run and it has proved a God-send to millions of people.

In the town where I live the distances are so great that everybody needs an automobile. Even plasterers and bricklayers cannot get to their work very easily without a car, and to put any kind of means of transportation at their disposal is a welcome gesture.

Ford has made it possible for almost anybody to have an automobile, and this new car of his seems to be a very good one.

Any corporation finds the popularity of its head and his dramatic possibilities an asset. Gary was dramatic and so was John H. Patterson. They not only advertised freely in the newspapers, but they furnished good news items, and their concerns got a lot of free publicity in addition to that which was paid for.

Ford is a rich man, but there are other reasons besides his riches for the widespread interest in him.

He has always paid good wages and has benefited the public by his products.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

HOW wonderful the world seemed to you when you were a little child! Fairies—there, plain to see, was their ring in the grass. Around every corner a surprise was waiting. Always you went on tiptoe, holding your heart open like a little cup to catch the wonder. Always you were listening—listening to something behind the Big Rock. Something hanging through the bubbling of the brook, something calling in the moonlight, faint and sweet, calling you to wake from sleep.

But that is all over now. The fairies have flown away, the wonder has dimmed, your heart has closed tight about its bitter ashes.

BUT THE SECRET VOICE STILL GOES ON.

In the midst of your humdrum life the Voice goes on, as magically as ever, whispering strange wisdom to you, singing lost song, calling faint and sweet, to awaken you from sleep.

The Voice still goes on, but you no longer think it is a fairy voice. You call it your imagination and you treat it as if it were another stomach or liver. The imagination isn't a stomach or liver. It is the most mysterious force on earth. Its power for good or evil has never been gauged. It has prompted all the beauty which man has ever created, and all the deviltry. There seems to be nothing that the imagination cannot do for us, if we will develop it. And yet no one has ever been able to define or explain it.

We know as little about our imaginations now as men knew when they lived as naked savages in gibbering packs. Indeed, they regard the imagination much more sensibly than we do. They never thought for an instant that it was another stomach or liver. THEY WERE ALWAYS SURE THAT SPIRITS SPOKE IN THEM.

That is what Joan of Arc thought of her Imagination. Do you remember how the "Voices" came to the simple peasant girl and told her to go to the rescue of her country? Joan believed in her Voices, but everyone else laughed at them. When she was brought before Robert de Baudricourt, too, hushed. Listen to these lines from Mr. Shaw's play about Joan:

Robert: How do you mean—voices?

Joan: I hear voices telling me what to do. They come from God.

Robert: They come from your imagination.

Joan: OF COURSE. THAT IS HOW THE MESSAGES OF GOD COME TO US.

Grip that thought. Think what an amazing new significance it gives to life. You haven't taken your imagination seriously since you were a child, have you?" You have developed every other part of you—but you have never developed that part of you, nor put your faith in it. And yet we are beginning to discover that that is the most important part of our whole being. That is the door which opens into infinity, through which all the forces of Life may speak to us.

You have sought for wisdom and power in OUTSIDE THINGS. BEGIN TODAY TO LOOK FOR POWER AND WISDOM INSIDE YOURSELF. BEGIN TO TAKE YOUR IMAGINATION SERIOUSLY. BEGIN TO TRUST THOSE FLAMING VISIONS THAT COME TO YOU. DEVELOP YOUR IMAGINATION. TURN BACK TO YOUR VOICES!

New York Day by Day

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Paddy's Market on Ninth Avenue is little known in business circles, but to middle class wage earners it is an El Dorado—a genuine marche des pieces. The best in provisions are auctioned at astonishingly low prices. Saturday is bargain day.

Aproned housewives go there with capacious baskets to fill the family larder. Truck gardeners and their dumpy, apple-cheeked wives sit in the stalls to barter and haggle good-naturedly with the endless parade of shoppers.

The flare of the banjo torches, the milling and jostling and raucous shouting gives the hectic glamour of a street fair. There is the old horse-radish grinder with his smoked glasses, the ruddy cheek stout man, the vendors of onions, carrots, cabbages and such.

Patrons arrive on street cars or foot. There are women who carry money in handkerchief ends and men with pectoral strap purses. Now and then is the cry, "Stop thief!" and the crowd pounces on some rat-faced shopper to hold him for the police.

In upstairs windows are leaning women, spouting imprecations at children in the street. Phonographs grind out wheezy, forgotten melodies. Roof tops bristle with radio aerials. Fire escapes are criss-crossed with wee wash, and puling babies add to the din.

Then there are the "left overs" marketers who arrive just before the time to scramble and bid for remnants. A pound of sodden grapes may end up a table, a rainbow corn two cents, a family steak for ten cents, for nothing is left behind.

The market place when the caravan departs, resembles a Kansas cooked after the twister. It is an rich district—hence the name Paddy's Market. The bright touch of fashion is when frugal chorus girls go there to market, following the matinee. But they do not come in hordes.

LITERARY speed records have been broken by R. M. Brinkerhoff, the illustrator, who wrote and illustrated a children's book and delivered it within 48 hours. There is a short story writer who frequently finishes a tale of 4,000 words in three hours. The average novelist is able to turn out two books a year. The custom of dictating has increased speed and puffed the income of many writers, although some of our most successful authors continue to write by hand.

EVERY boarding house has a girl "slavey"—a work-worn drudge who washes dishes, builds fires, cleans steps and performs other menial tasks. In New York somehow they are a type. They remain for years without leaving the house to go further than the corner grocery. They are the first up and the last to bed and the only touch of romance in their lives comes through reading paper-backed novels. They are more numerous in Brooklyn than in Manhattan, but they are still seen in the latter borough, especially in the mass-sons catering to a theatrical clientele.

THERE is something stimulating in these coffee pot places frequented by taxi drivers. They pulp food with their lips on seeing tabloids propped up against the sugar bowls. And their talk is fly and irresistible. "How's tricking, sir, my cy." "This just merry-go-rounded a drunk in Central Park," and such. They eat limburger and onion, hamburger and garlic between thick slabs with a gusto. And they wield toothpicks out front unashamed.

The Bureau of Standards suggests that glass thus prepared, by the way, loses its faculty of transmitting, permitting the passage of actinic rays, after a while. That is another story, and something to be investigated by those interested.

If you are nervous, put bullet-proof glass in your windshields.
